Health maintenance is one of the most important priorities in a person's life, and the goal of the healthcare industry is to create and maintain a healthy population. In theory this makes for a clean business bargain.

But the sheer criticality of healthcare—and the importance of its effectiveness to everyone—makes the industry more complex than others. While it's clear that the paramount objective of health care organizations is to provide excellent customer care, affordability, reliability, security and agility are also essential to success.

Healthcare Objectives and Challenges

Whether you are a healthcare provider, payor or supplier, it's likely that you or your affiliates need to: improve the quality of care by increasing patient safety and decreasing errors, and automating clinical processes; decrease costs by increasing efficiency and resource utilization, driving real-time cost data and oversight, and enabling quick adaptation to changing environments and regulations; and increase patient satisfaction by expanding access to healthcare services, growing markets, and retaining patients.
